“Wearable Electronics”

Fascinating presentation about the emerging and increasingly relevant world of "wearable electronics", with special emphasis on new products that you'll see in the near future and what technical developments are needed in order to move forward with future designs.

Speaker: Jordan Rice, VP Product Development at Quanttus, Inc., Cambridge, Mass.

Speaker: Jordan Rice currently serves as the Vice President of Product Development at Quanttus, a position he has held since July 2013. Previously, Mr. Rice served as the Director of Product Development Engineering with Nike from 2012 to July 2013. In this role, he focused on the design, engineering and production of Nike+ FuelBand & Nike+ FuelBand SE, among other Nike+ enabled devices. From 2010 to 2012, Mr. Rice was a Product Architect on the Digital Sport team at Nike, outlining and delivering product technologies from concept to mass production, and supporting NPI in mainland China for small and large-scale manufacturing. Before joining Nike, Mr. Rice served as the Senior Product Development Director at Synapse Product Development from 2008 until 2010. He began his time with Synapse as a Program Director and Technical Lead from 2005 to 2008. Mr. Rice started in engineering product development as a Technical Associate for Optical Data Networks Research Group at Lucent Bell Laboratories from 2000 to 2003. He co-founded and served as Vice President at Faradic Internet Services, L.L.C. from 1997 to 2002. Mr. Rice holds more than ten patents in the consumer electronics and athletic monitoring space. He earned a BSEE and a MSEE from Bucknell University.
